

POUND OF BUTTER COSTS $7,500 IN RUSSIA

By DON S. DAY.
RIGA, March 10.—(via London, March 11.)—The scarcity of food and the high price of such food as there is, furnished the chief cause of the anti-soviet uprising in Russia, according to reliable information received here today.
If the Russian rouble had its old pre-war value and food prices were taken at their present day level, a pound of butter in Moscow would cost $7,500 and a pound of sugar would cost $7,500.

It must be admitted, however, that the value of the Russian rouble seems to have reached the irreducible minimum. From December to March, food prices in Moscow have advanced as follows:
Butter, from 7,000 to 14,000 roubles; sugar, from 7,000 to 15,000 roubles; potatoes, from 14,000 to 40,000 roubles; meat from 800 roubles to 4,000 roubles per pound; black bread from 500 roubles to 2,000 roubles per loaf; white bread from 1,500 to 3,500 roubles per loaf.
Despite the depreciated quality of paper money the peasants have been cornering it, causing a shortage in the cities.

Models Display Right Costumes For Women In Business To Wear

The second of a series of lectures on the "Modern American Woman—Her Dress," was given this afternoon at the Wilson Normal Community Center by Mrs. Alice Buchanan, service director for Frank R. Jelleff, Inc.

Her subject was "What to Wear and When to Wear It," was discussed under two heads—costumes for business wear and costumes for social wear. Under the business heading came shopping, committee meetings, club meetings, business and office wear and under the social head came gowns for formal and informal wear, dinners, receptions, lunches, teas, cards, church. During the course of the lecture, living models illustrated the proper clothes to wear on each occasion.

DANGER IS OVERDRESSING.
"There is far more danger of being overdressed than underdressed," declared Mrs. Buchanan in opening her lecture. She then explained that some women who had not lived in the city and who were broadminded enough to admit that they did not know just how to dress, often sought advice on this subject.

Color was discussed in its connection with the seasons, the complexion and the line of the figure. Throughout her talk Mrs. Buchanan emphasized the need for fitting the clothes to the personality of the wearer and the needs of the occasion rather than being in any way a slave to fashion. Stout women with an unattractive figure, she told her audience, should wear gray or neutral colors, because bright or warm colors makes objects appear larger than they really are.

DRESS FOR GOOD POINTS.
Mrs. Buchanan was introduced by Mrs. Ida E. Kebler, community secretary. Last fall Mrs. Kebler, from her own experience, conceived the idea of having a series of talks delivered on the proper dress for different occasions as well as dress that would bring out the good points of the figure and conceal those not so good. She began to look around for some one to give the talks and it was at this time that one of the members of the Community Center came to her and offered to help. Mrs. Buchanan knew of Mrs. Buchanan's interest in the subject, as well as community center work, and so the lectures were arranged.

The first of the talks was given on February 26. This afternoon's lecture will be repeated tonight at 8:15 o'clock, while the third and last of the series will be given at the Wilson Normal center on March 18, both at 8:30 in the afternoon and at 8:15 o'clock at night.

ROOSEVELT WILLING TO PAY COLOMBIA

John Barrett Reveals Ex-President Was Only Opposed to Expressed Apology.

Theodore Roosevelt never was unalterably opposed to making some form of payment to Colombia for the Panama Canal Zone, according to John Barrett, former director general of the Pan American Union, and first regular United States minister to Colombia after the separation of Panama, who spoke yesterday before the General Staff College here.

"Roosevelt was vigorously against an expressed apology," he said, "but the records of the State Department and statements which he several times made to me proved that he actually favored a new treaty that would settle finally the United States-Colombian-Panama problem."

"I recall clearly the negotiations with the Colombian government at Bogota in 1906-1908, which I had the honor and responsibility of conducting as the first regular United States minister accredited to Colombia after the separation of Panama. Under specific instructions of Secretary of State Elihu Root, when Mr. Roosevelt was President, and in closest touch with everything done in the State Department, I negotiated and signed with the minister of foreign affairs of Colombia, when then Rafael Reyes was President, a protocol for a treaty which, if it had been enacted, should have settled forever the great question which has ever since hung fire. "The big fact is that this protocol was approved by Secretary Root when he stopped at Cartagena, Colombia, in the summer of 1906, upon his return journey, and it provided for the eventual negotiation of a treaty which would have included important financial considerations or payments covering what Colombia regarded as her material losses, and probably been approved by both governments had it not been for political difficulties in Colombia growing out of General Reyes' attitude toward certain home questions other than the treaty, which resulted in his defeat."

Quiros, a Spaniard, circumnavigated the globe in 1606, but the first Englishman to do so was Sir Francis Drake in 1677.
